President's Report

It was another successful year for the GBSF in which our individual and club membership numbers grew and our finances remained strong and we expanded our geographical coverage of the UK significantly. Squad training, building on last year's success, went from strength to strength and included more guest instructors. Our international teams gained four medals on the world stage.

Membership rose by an impressive 37% this year. We were delighted to welcome two new clubs:

- Sam Byford-Winter joined us from Toronto, and opened Brighton Savate.
- Joe Ferris opened Savate Northern Ireland, our first NI club. Savate NI includes students with British and Irish passports, and therefore we are working closely with Ireland Savate to support this new club.

Excitingly, both new clubs have large numbers of junior members!

Once again the highlight of the domestic year was the British Championships and Open, held again at Broadwater School in Farncombe on 27th July, and hosted by Guildford Savate. As usual they did a superb job of arranging the competition. It was smaller than recent years, which allowed a more relaxed and friendly atmosphere. 30 athletes competed, of which seven were women. Seven champion titles were awarded. It was agreed by the executive to separate the Championships and the Open competition next year in order to provide a better experience for international fighters seeking open matches, and British fighters contesting titles.

In March, Northern Ireland held their first Savate Assaut competition. It was attended by Laura Gilbert and James Antill, representing the GBSF, who competed and officiated. Martin O'Malley also brought a team from Ireland and supported the competition. There were 16 seniors and 50 juniors, creating an exciting day of 85 fights, of which 55 were juniors. A high standard of competition was seen, and the day went off very smoothly in a superb atmosphere.

The inaugural Viking Cup was also held on 7/8th May in Cambridge, organised by Julie Gabriel. The new Viking Cup competition is open to all Savate clubs in FISav member countries in Northern Europe, as well as to savateurs of Northern European nationalities who live elsewhere. Seven clubs from Finland, Germany, Great Britain and Ireland participated, and there were 38 assaut bouts and 10 duos. It will be held next year in Ireland.

The new executive committee, elected at the AGM in November, agreed that “Outreach” would be our main focus for the 2017-2019 term. A large GBSF event is in the planning stages for Manchester later in the year. The GBSF began releasing a friendly and informative quarterly newsletter in December, put together by our hardworking new secretary, Sian-Marie Frosini.

Director of Technique’s Report

This was another good year for GBSF with the technical level of the athletes and the opportunities for participation and progress both growing. The most prestigious event of the year under review was the World Assaut Championships 2016, held in Varazdin, Croatia, in September in which six GBSF athletes participated, with four coming home with bronze or silver medals.

GBSF made 22 coloured glove grading awards this year, a similar number to last year (23). With the continuation of in-house club gradings, we could expect this number to rise next year.

The Adjunct DTN was Siân-Marie Clark at the start of the reporting period, who was succeeded by Kalle Heinola in the AGM of November 2016 as Sian moved to the role of Secretary. I would like to thank Siân for her estimable efforts in organising and furthering the DTN’s capacity to serve the Federation, and I look forward to utilising Kalle’s many years of experience and technical expertise in future.

Report of the head of Canne de Combat

This year GBSF Cannists competed in both the Titis Parisiens and the Open de Toulouse Competitions. Beginners and more experienced Cannists were at both competitions, and all did well against the highest standard of International fighters, no one was placed but all acquitted themselves to a very satisfactory standard of technique. Morgan Alexander represented GBSF in the World Canne de Combat Championships in Croatia in September, competing confidently against strong opposition, including World Champion Nicole Holzmann.

In November, the instructor training committee approved Nicole Holzmann and Thomas Horstmeyer for Moniteur and Initiateur level instructorship, which will be granted when they gain first aid qualifications. Nicole and Thomas are highly experienced international cannists and we are very excited to have them in the UK. They have been teaching a number of private seminars, and we look forward to them teaching for the GBSF in the near future.

Accounts

GBSF license fees are still strong at £1400. This is the same as 2015-16, and 40% higher than 2014-15 (which had been stable for four years). This is partly due to increase in fees from £4 to £5, and partly through more GBSF members and clubs.

Grading income remains stable, at a similar level for the last 4 years.

Expenses are again stable at £1400, again at a similar level for at least 4 years, although slowly increasing by a few percent each year.

Events income appears artificially high in these accounts since the GBSF did not receive a hall hire invoice during this year.

Overall, a strong federal income means that the GBSF has a healthy surplus, trending at around £400 GBP, if current membership figures are retained.
